5. Why volunteering for PMI is important for me

Volunteering for PMI is a true pleasure and of great importance to me. I have been involved in founding the PMI Sweden Chapter 1997-98 and have seen the Chapter develop to become the fastest growing Chapter in the history of PMI. Volunteering for PMI brings a personal and team satisfaction in the ability to motivate individuals to engage themselves and create dynamic results in a non-profit organization.

To see that there are stronger forces at play than financial motivators; forces such as interest, passion, competence and the willingness to make a difference all bring forth an enjoyment of volunteering for PMI.

There is the pleasure of working in a truly global organization such as PMI where differences in both cultures and language are breached and individuals and organizations are given the possibility to come closer irrespective of different levels of maturity. PMI enables the spread of knowledge and gives networking opportunities in a dynamic and unique way and above these it enables true friendship to develop and grow amongst the individuals who meet through the organization.
